Onboarding and Mentoring Program

Skilled migrants across Australia go through various challenges starting with social integration, understanding the culture of Australia, and more importantly, finding a job in their respective fields.

The first session is a day long onboarding program that enables new skilled migrants and international students in the following:

- Understanding the culture of Australia and how to fit into a new workplace
- Understanding Australian Qualifications and what Australian employers expect
- Steps in writing your resume and cover letter and interview preparations
- Benefits of social media and creating your personal brand to lift your confidence
- Volunteering, community engagement and its benefits

The second session is an online cultural competence training developed by SBS. This training further delves into understanding the culture of Australia and specifically details workplace ethics and practices.

The third session is broken up into 4 one-on-one mentoring sessions. Lead mentors who are highly experienced and industry specialists spend time with new migrants to share their experiences.

Be Connected

“Every Australian Online” is the goal of this program. Funded by “Good Things Foundation”, Ignite Potential is one of the network partners that has been looked at to deliver this national goal of the Australian Government to equip and empower all Australians to thrive in a digital world.

Interested participants are trained and coached to become Digital Mentors. This daylong face to face program uses standard online material provided by Good Things Foundation to train digital mentors.

The second step is for the trained digital mentors to spread awareness and train others and empower them with knowledge of the digital world. This creates a chain of spreading awareness and knowledge.

Your Pathway to Success

Culturally and Linguistically Diverse (CALD) Mental Health Champions

Most of the multicultural population shy away from discussing mental health of their fellow family members or friends. Funded by the Department of Health, NTG this program aims to identify and equip CALD community leaders and first responders by training them with appropriate culturally specific skills to address mental health issues in their community. This training will enable them to create awareness and professionally respond to community members to rely on them as first point of contact to resolve community issues related to mental health.
